Clement's Kindness

Greetings,

As most of you know, Clement's Kindness is a charity whose sole purpose is to assist the children being treated by Dr. Cary Stroud and his staff for pediatric cancer and other serious blood disorders. As you will see in this report, the families of these children need help during the stress of diagnosis and treatment, and our goal is to help alleviate the problems that cannot be covered by other agencies.

Now is the ideal time to reflect on what has been accomplished because of the amazing generosity of all the contributors throughout the Upstate counties. Greenville is one of only three pediatric cancer centers, and the other two are located in Columbia and Charleston.

We are profoundly grateful for the support we have received from special funds, corporations, and individuals. There is no question that you who are reading this are responsible for the wonderful things that Clement's Kindness has been able to do.

Since 2002, when the fund was first started, there has been an increase each year in the number of patients and families who need assistance with the financial and emotional burdens of fighting pediatric cancer or serious blood disorders. Our purpose is to help make some of their burdens a little lighter to carry. We'd like to highlight some of the special things your donations have made possible over the past eight years.

- The families whose children are being treated can now go to the Respite Room -- an extra waiting room that was once a storage area. Dr. Stroud and his staff felt that the families needed a room where they could collect their thoughts and perhaps talk to the doctors privately. This room became a reality because of your donations to Clement's Kindness and the help of Buck Welling with the Hollingsworth Fund.

- During this difficult time of treatment, it is so important that the families and children spend some normal, fun time together. Each year, the patients, along with their siblings and parents, go to Carowinds and for a short time have fun just like other children and families. With your help, Clement's Kindness provides funds for the food, rides, and tickets.

- The Clemson Tigers and Furman Paladins have both welcomed the children and spent time playing and talking with them. Each child received a jersey and a ball. We appreciate the generosity of all the players and coaches.

- This year the children and their families were treated to a very special day with the Greenville Drive. Craig Brown, owner, Mike deMaine, manager, and the Greenville Drive players gave each child lots of time to play ball, eat lunch, and chat with the ball players. Each family was also given tickets to come back to see a Greenville Drive game. What a caring member of the Greenville community the Drive is. Thank you!

- In 2008, Clement's Kindness Fund pledged $500,000 to make Camp Courage a reality. Every year for five years, $100,000 will be given to Camp Courage. Now it is possible for the children who are fighting cancer or serious blood disorders to attend a camp that meets their medical needs, allowing them to safely experience summer camp. This would not have happened without the generosity of so many individuals from all the Upstate counties, as well as the caring foundations and businesses.

We understand that giving is difficult in this economy. But please know that if you can give to Clement's Kindness, your donation will be used to make the lives of these children a little happier and less stressful. Your kindness can make a big difference.

Thank you!

Priscilla and Knox Haynsworth

Throughout this report, you will see examples of how a little kindness can make a big difference. From funds for support groups to assistance with everyday expenses and summer camp, Clement's Kindness touches so many lives in both big and small ways.

Clement Haynsworth

The challenging economic environment has touched everyone's life, but especially the families you will meet in this annual report. As anyone can understand, when your child is in intensive care and the doctors are not sure that the child will make it through the day, there is no parent in the world that could leave their child's side to go to work. Unfortunately, this is the reality often facing the families at the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center at the Children's Hospital.

Even when parents are employed, often one has to quit work or take an extended leave of absence to support the treatment of the child. Together, the child and the parents need to focus on the treatment with the goal of helping the child get well. The family's bills continue to go up while their income goes down, and there simply aren't enough community services or programs to provide for every need.

Fortunately, Clement's Kindness and the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center are here to help. The Center is one of only three in the state and treats children from Anderson to Spartanburg to Pickens and Pelzer. The staff at the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center of the Children's Hospital is able to use Clement's Kindness to provide special help that means so much to the families of these children.

A little kindness can make a big difference:

- Sympathy floral arrangements and the book "Healing After Loss" following a patient's death
- School Intervention Program
- SCAT teen and parent support groups
- Annual Carowinds family outing
- Clemson and Furman sports outings
- Gas and Grocery cards
- Financial assistance
- Special requests

Camp Courage Helps Patients Feel Like Kids Again

Camp Courage was rightfully named by former patient David Bishop who put it best when he said, "It takes a lot of courage to have cancer." Two years ago, Clement's Kindness Fund for the Children announced a special gift of $500,000 to the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center for the development of Camp Courage. The funds were used for the creation of The Clement's Kindness Cabins and Recreation Area. Construction of the cabin pods began in early 2009 and was completed in time for this summer's camp. Celebrating its 15th year, Camp Courage is a therapeutic component of the care provided by BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center for children ages 5-18 living with cancer or chronic blood disorders. For two weeks each summer, campers and volunteers come together to share a special time together. In 2009, a total of 106 children participated in Camp Courage.

The experience is designed to give the children and teens a fun, relaxing break from their often exhausting treatment routine. At camp, children and teens can remember who they are without their sickness, while at the same time, they have an opportunity to make friends with others who can relate to what they've experienced. The camp brings a bit of normalcy to patients that often feel that normal is not a word that describes them. It also allows the patients to be independent and separate from their illness and opens up the line of communication through understanding and empathy for the patients and their families. The dedicated staff at the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center partners with many long-time and new volunteers to offer the experience. The staff enjoys seeing the patients' true personalities that oftentimes aren't apparent in a clinical setting. Camp activities include tennis, canoeing, archery, arts and crafts, a dance, wall climbing and much more. The past several years, camp has also included a carnival for friends and family. The fellowship among the campers and with the counselors and volunteers is truly a treasure to all that participate. Currently it takes approximately $550.00 per camper to run one session of Camp Courage. This amount includes, arts and craft supplies, horseback riding, D.J. service, carnival service, supplies such as camp shirts and medical equipment and more. With our contributors' help, Clement's Kindness looks forward to continuing to support this incredible opportunity for children facing cancer and life-threatening blood disorders.

Clement's Kindness Caravans to Carowinds

The annual summertime trip to Carowinds is often on the calendar for many families in the Upstate. But when you have a child with cancer or a serious blood disorder, it may be difficult to find the extra funds of $250 or more for a family of four. Fortunately, with your support, Clement's Kindness is able to sponsor a yearly trip to Carowinds for patients under the age of 13 and their immediate family members.

This year, we had 31 families and a total of 132 people participate. Twenty-two of the families that attended were families that were living with cancer or had been treated for cancer. The other nine families that attended included children living with blood disorders, such as sickle cell anemia, hemophilia, or aplastic anemia.

Families enjoyed a relaxing ride on a chartered bus with snacks, drinks and a movie. Once everyone arrived at the park, the families were given their tickets and the day was theirs to enjoy together. At 3:30, everyone gathered to enjoy a picnic lunch catered by Carowinds including fabulous fried chicken, hot dogs, hamburgers, macaroni and cheese, chips, drinks and cookies for dessert.

This year, several of the families included five or more children and thanks to Clement's Kindness, their siblings were able to share in this adventure. Many families would not be able to afford this trip, which makes it a true blessing for kids and parents alike. Thank you so much to our contributors for your continued support and love for the families we serve. The annual trip to Carowinds provides a great time for families to share in a day together and support each other as they face the many challenges ahead.

Clement's Kindness Teams Up with Furman and Clemson for Special Sports Outings

Although many of the children treated at the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center are avid basketball and football fans, their treatment often prevents them from being able to attend games and events. This past year, Clement's Kindness was able to sponsor outings for a Furman football practice and game, as well as a Clemson basketball scrimmage trip.

Last October, six families joined Clement's Kindness for a Furman football practice. Every child and sibling received a Furman notebook and pen to collect autographs and the kids had the unique opportunity to watch the players practice and then meet them afterwards.

Later in October, six families and a total of 78 people attended the Rock the John event in Clemson. Once we arrived, each family had the opportunity to take a tour of Littlejohn Coliseum and each child and sibling received a basketball for autographs. After the tour, families enjoyed the special privilege of sitting behind the players on the floor to watch the game. Coach Oliver Purnell came over to take pictures with the families and sign their basketballs. After the event, the families were able to stay and gather more autographs from the players.

Also in October, 35 patients and family members joined Clement's Kindness for the Furman football homecoming game. Everyone was treated to a tailgate lunch in the Daniel Chapel parking lot and then went to the stadium to watch the Paladins take the field. The patients and families even had the unique opportunity to go through the inflatable helmet that the Paladins run through before the game. Our families were also able to stand on the sidelines while the players warmed up.

We'd like to thank all of our contributors for their support, which helps sponsor these events and make our patients' dreams come true.

Everyone enjoys a beautiful night at the ballpark, but when you can enjoy the game from the comfort of a corporate suite that makes the outing even more special. That's why we'd like to thank the Greenville office of Smith Moore Leatherwood LLP for graciously donating their corporate suite at the Greenville Drive Stadium to Clement's Kindness. On September 4, patients and their families from the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center received box tickets to the Greenville Drive vs. Hickory Crawdads game.

The families all had a fantastic time as they were able to watch the baseball game from an ideal vantage point while enjoying all the best of ballpark food in the suite. These outings provide an ideal opportunity for patients and their families to take a break from the rigors of treatment and bond with one another. Clement's Kindness is extremely grateful for corporate partners like Smith Moore Leatherwood LLP who know the importance of giving back to the community that it serves.

"At Smith Moore Leatherwood, we welcome the opportunity to give back to community organizations such as Clement's Kindness," said Tod Hyche, Managing Partner of the Greenville office. "Our firm and its lawyers make contributions of time, legal work, and financial assistance to many organizations throughout the year, but it's a special privilege to do something for these incredible children and their families."

Dr. Glenn Head visits with BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center patients
Landon Taylor and Maddison Chandler.

As owner of Eastside Pediatric Dentistry, Dr. Glenn Head knows a thing or two about children, especially how much they like to have fun. When Dr. Head heard about the work that Clement's Kindness was doing to help children, he immediately wanted to become involved and asked how he could help.

One of the most important things that Clement's Kindness does is to provide funding to sponsor activities and outings for the patients and families, so that for just one day, or even an hour or two, they can feel like a kid again. Dr. Head offered to sponsor an outing over the summer and arranged for the kids to see the movie Shrek Forever After at the Great Escape Simpsonville 14 IMAX. The children and families were treated to an afternoon of fun as they watched the last installment of this popular movie franchise in the new theater.

"I think any time that you are able to empower children to have a more fulfilled life, especially children facing the incredible challenges of cancer, it's actually more rewarding for yourself than the children that you're helping. These kids have been dealt a tough hand of cards, but it's so rewarding to donate to Clement's Kindness so that they can have a bright spot in their day. To be involved is quite meaningful and allows us to be part of the community and help where we can," said Dr. Head.

In June, the Greenville Drive graciously hosted six families from the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center for a special photo shoot and a morning of fun and games with the team's players, followed by a cookout luncheon. The Greenville Drive is a Boston Red Sox Class A minor league affiliate that makes their home in downtown Greenville. Not only is the Greenville Drive an affiliate of the Boston Red Sox, but the stadium at Fluor Field in the West End, was modeled after Boston's famous Fenway Park.

Fluor Field turned out to be one of the most entertaining locations ever for a photo shoot for the Clement's Kindness annual report. When the children arrived at the field, every child and sibling received a Greenville Drive bat and baseball for autographs. However, it was the Greenville Drive baseball players that really made the day extra special. After a grueling schedule of 28 games in a row, the players got up early, suited up and spent the morning meeting the children, giving autographs and playing baseball with the children and their siblings. When lunch was served, the players joined the families for their meal.

"The Greenville Drive is a sports team dedicated to helping our community. We believe in using baseball and entertainment as a backdrop in supporting and strengthening Greenville and Upstate communities," said Mike deMaine, General Manager for The Greenville Drive. "While we are a summer sport, we do work in the community twelve months a year through mascot appearances at schools and local events, donations to fundraisers, the Greenville Drive Reading All-Stars program, staff volunteer work and much more."

"We were very fortunate to be able to host the kids from Clement's Kindness today. We understand that the kids get a lot out of a day like this, but our players get just as much out of it as well. This is what life is all about," said deMaine.

Player Profile: Pete Ruiz

Pete Ruiz is the kind of young man that you hope your son will grow up to be. After an exhausting 28 game schedule, he volunteered to suit up and meet children from Clement's Kindness on one of his rare mornings off.

Drafted in 2008, the California native has enjoyed his first year in Greenville. "I love Greenville. It's a great town and everyone here is so nice. The park is fantastic and we have a really amazing fan base," commented Ruiz.

Since joining the Greenville Drive, Ruiz has made numerous community appearances including speaking at Furman University, a health conference and participating in the Mauldin Miracle League. After playing with the kids from Clement's Kindness for over two hours in the hot sun, one of the little boys tugged on Pete's jersey and asked him if he would join his family for lunch. Pete grabbed a plate, made a couple of hot dogs and then sat down and talked with the family for the next half hour.

"Enjoying a morning with these kids is really what it's all about. It's great to see how happy they are and to reflect on your own life. It really helps put things in perspective," said Ruiz.

Special Profile: Pam Broughton

When you talk to families and ask them how they became involved with Clement's Kindness, the answer is usually the same, "Pam." But don't let the simple reply belie the incredible woman who has worked tirelessly for 23 years to help the patients and their families that come to the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center.

Pam first started at Greenville Memorial in 1984 as a social worker in the neurology department. She received a degree in sociology with a minor in education from Howard University in Washington, D.C. Pam also has a masters degree in social work from Atlanta University. Although she enjoyed her position as a neuro social worker, her heart was in working with children so when a position opened with the Pediatric Hematology Oncology Center, she took it.

In her position as a social worker, Broughton is responsible for helping both inpatients and outpatients deal with the social and psychological issues that face families fighting cancer including finances, coordinating resources, working with insurance companies, school education, support groups and more.

"I love my job because it's still a challenge and every day is different, every family is different and their needs and challenges are different. I work with patients that range in age from newborns to teenagers to young adults in their twenties," said Pam. "I am continually inspired by their strength and how these patients and families grow through the process. In some situations, the fight against cancer helps these families pull together and grow together in new ways that they might not have if they weren't faced with it."

In the past few years, the economy has provided a real challenge and that's why Clement's Kindness is so important. "Clement's Kindness is a real blessing to the families, but it's also a blessing to me. So many community agencies can no longer help. But through Clement's Kindness, I can see that these families get the help they need. I had a situation where a child was in ICU for months and it was literally day to day, so the mother understandably would not leave the child's side and she could have lost her house, but Clement's Kindness stepped in and helped with mortgage payments," said Pam.

When you spend time with Pam, you're amazed by her energy and optimism considering that she is surrounded by children and families in crisis, and it's natural to wonder how she can maintain such a positive attitude.

"I think I've done my job so long because I gain as much, if not more, from every family that I've worked with through the years," commented Pam, "I had one mom who didn't drive when her child was diagnosed, so the father had to leave work. Today, the mother is driving on her own. I had another mother who had never finished high school. When her child was diagnosed she wanted to be a better mother, so Clement's Kindness paid for her to take a GED class. She got her GED, and now she's taking college classes online. I'm truly inspired by theese families' strength and all the challenges they overcome."

Pam is an equally dedicated wife and mother to her three children ages 28, 25 and 17. "When I'm home, I'm home. My hope is that my children have learned a good work ethic and soon I'll have another one in college, so I guess I'll be working at least another ten years here to get her through college," added Pam.

We certainly hope so.

The Clement's Kindness fund helped make it possible for Edith's parents to see that she was able to receive the care she needed both in Greenville and at The National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Maryland.

Edith Carrasco
Greenwood, South Carolina

Edith was just like any other teenager, enjoying life and high school, until last year when she was hospitalized and diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia. Several weeks into her treatment, the medical staff noted that Edith was not responding to the chemotherapy. At that point, her treatment plan changed and once she was found to be in remission, Edith, accompanied by her mother and sister, was sent to The National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Maryland, where she has underwent a Bone Marrow Transplant.

Since her diagnosis, The Clement's Kindness Fund was able to assist Edith and her family in several ways. The team of the School Intervention Program made a trip to Greenwood High School where they met with the school personnel about her illness and treatment and arranged a homebound teacher for Edith to continue her schoolwork at home.

The week before Christmas, Clement's Kindness provided funds for Edith to have a couple of hours away from the hospital for a surprise Christmas shopping spree. Additionally, The Clement's Kindness Fund has assisted Edith's family with household deposits and bills, gas for their trip to Maryland and meals for her mother and sister during Edith's hospitalization.

"The help from Clement's Kindness was really heartfelt. They were there when no one else was. The special trips and outings they sponsor really help our children and families. We really enjoyed Carowinds and the fact that with Clement's Kindness help, they were able to include siblings. Although my son is the patient, my daughter suffers as well, and when she is included it really means a lot." – Michele Jackson

Nathaniel P. Jackson
Abbeville, South Carolina

Nathaniel may someday be the next American Idol, as he loves to play the guitar, sing and dance. But at just four years old he is facing severe hemophilia and bone degenerative disease and is being followed by the medical staff of the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center for management of his Factor IX deficiency, hemophilia.

Nathaniel's treatment requires numerous medical appointments, which makes it financially difficult for his parents to keep up with things like household bills and car repair. In need of assistance, his mother mentioned her financial concern to the medical team at the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center. A referral was made to Clement's Kindness so that the fund could help her with gas cards, the payment of a power bill and a car repair. Nathaniel and his family also enjoyed the Carowinds family outing sponsored by Clement's Kindness.

"When we couldn't work, Clement's Kindness was there to help for those few months. Ever since we came to the hospital, our gratitude has been building up and we will be thankful to Clement's Kindness for the rest of our lives. Honestly, it's a blessing to be here today at the baseball stadium and watching our children play."
– Jose Ernesto and Bertha Fernandez

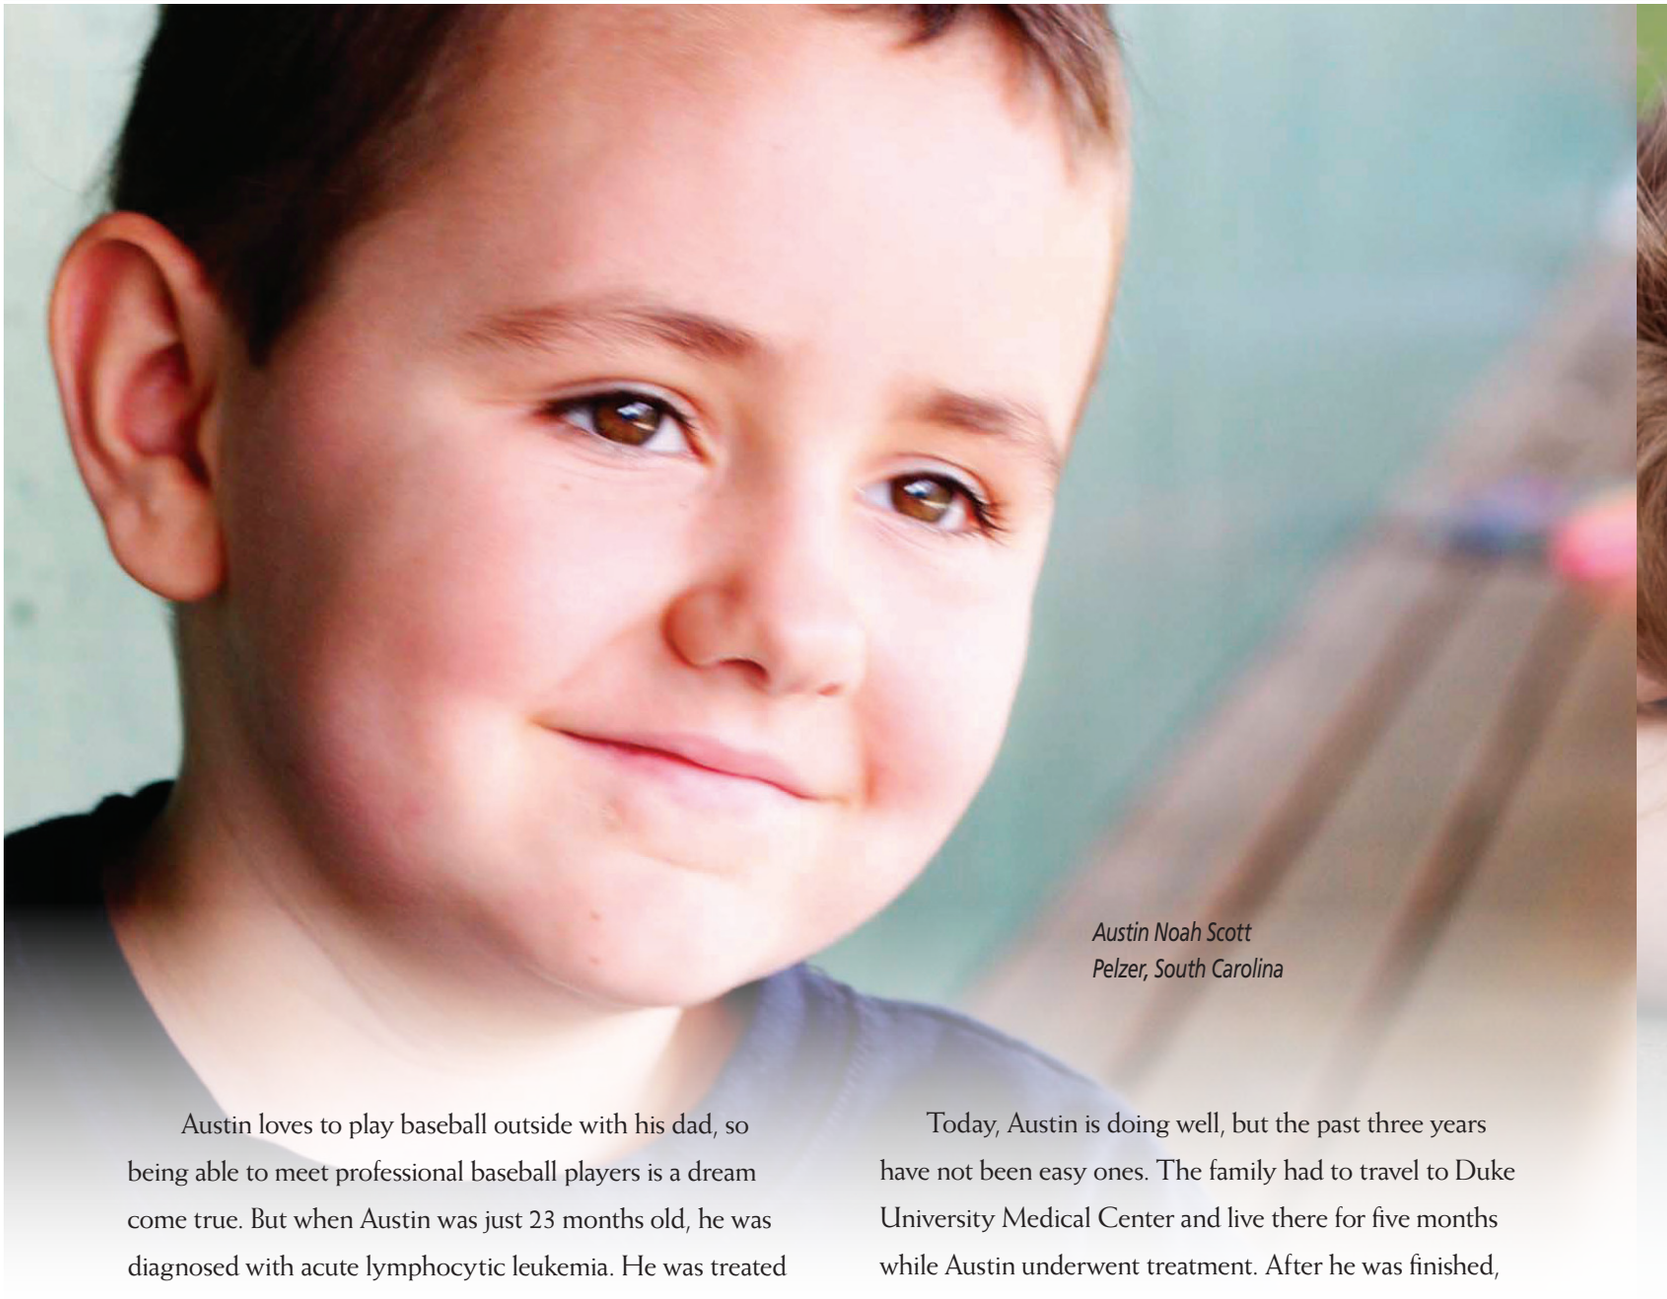

Kaylee Fernandez
Greenville, South Carolina

When you first meet Kaylee, you feel like you've just been introduced to a little princess with raven hair, soft curls and a beautiful smile. And you would never guess that this beautiful little girl has already gone through the fight of her life. Last year, when Kaylee was just an infant, she was diagnosed with stage IV neuroblastoma.

It was a terrifying time for her parents. During treatment, Kaylee's mother, Bertha, had to quit working to care for Kaylee, and her father also had to take time off to be with his family at the hospital. Kaylee was treated with a course of chemotherapy that took approximately one month to complete. During that time, Clement's Kindness supported their family by helping with the payment of their rent and household bills.

Today, Kaylee is just like any other toddler who loves to play house, pretend she's cooking or twirl around in pretty dresses and sparkly shoes. Both Kaylee and her brother, Christopher, enjoyed a fun-filled morning at the ballpark running around the field with the Greenville Drive players.

"We were very fortunate to have friends and family help with the cost associated with the transplant, but in 2009, our burdens really hit us once we got back home. Clement's Kindness has been a huge help to us with financial assistance for our many trips back and forth to Duke University and a car payment. Clement's Kindness has really been a blessing to us."
– LeighAnn Scott

Austin Noah Scott
Pelzer, South Carolina

Austin loves to play baseball outside with his dad, so being able to meet professional baseball players is a dream come true. But when Austin was just 23 months old, he was diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia. He was treated with chemotherapy and progressed well until August of 2008, when he was found to be in relapse of his leukemia.

Austin and his parents traveled to Duke University Medical Center where he had a Bone Marrow Transplant. After the transplant, Austin was confined to the house for a year to avoid infections, so his family built a train table for him, complete with Lionel trains, a city and mountains to keep him entertained and busy while he recovered.

Today, Austin is doing well, but the past three years have not been easy ones. The family had to travel to Duke University Medical Center and live there for five months while Austin underwent treatment. After he was finished, there were still countless trips for treatment and follow up both at Duke University Medical Center and at the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center. When parents have to take five or more months off of work, it of course causes financial strain for the family. The Clement's Kindness Fund was able to help support the family with financial assistance for car payments and household bills, and travel expenses for the follow-up visits at Duke University Medical Center.

"We had to travel back and forth to Charleston so many times for treatments, and if Clement's Kindness wasn't able to assist with help for our car payment, my mom would have lost her car. I want to thank you for all you've done to help our family in our time of need."
– Jessica Trotter

Jessica L. Trotter
Liberty, South Carolina

Getting ready to start high school can be a challenging time for any child, but Jessica's whole world was turned upside down when she was diagnosed with Ewing's Sarcoma as she was about to enter the ninth grade. She was later found to have myelodysplastic syndrome for which she underwent a Bone Marrow Transplant at the Medical University of South Carolina, and she had to have surgery in Charlotte, North Carolina, as well.

Jessica has experienced several complications but has remained a real inspiration through it all and is doing well today. Her parents and brother have also been very supportive, but the journey has been difficult for their family both emotionally and financially. Fortunately, Clement's Kindness has been able to help support this amazing family in their fight and was able to assist with gas cards for their many trips for treatment, grocery cards, meal cards and payments for household bills.

Today, Jessica is able to enjoy her summer just like any other teenager and has special plans to go to Disney World and attend Camp Courage. "My whole teenage years have been spent being sick, and I want to be a kid for a while. I want to have fun before I go to college," added Jessica.

As she looks to the future, Jessica's goal is to attend Clemson University where she can realize her dream of being a neonatal nurse and working with babies in the neonatal intensive care unit.

"Like any child, Maddison has been discouraged at times during her treatment because she couldn't do a lot of things that other kids can do. But when Maddison went to Camp Courage, she was just like all the other kids; she could canoe and do a lot of activities and she told me 'I felt like a normal kid again'. I'd like to thank Clement's Kindness for doing such wonderful things for our kids. I'm so grateful, I don't know what we would have done without their support." – Fonda Chandler

Maddison Chandler
Gaffney, South Carolina

Maddison is a gifted student that excels in school, so when she was diagnosed with aplastic anemia last year, she suddenly was facing extended absences. Her medical treatments and follow-up checks required a minimum of weekly trips from Gaffney to Greenville. The time missed from class was challenging, and school personnel needed to be educated about aplastic anemia and the special precautions to be taken at school.

A nurse and social worker from the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center's School Intervention Program made a trip to Grassy Pond Elementary School in Gaffney and met with Maddison's teachers, principal, nurse and guidance counselor. Clement's Kindness made arrangements for homebound services to be provided when Maddison could not attend school and provided an in-service for the staff that helped them understand her illness, treatment, and special things to be mindful of while she is at school. The in-service also helped Maddison's parents and school personnel feel more comfortable with her being in school.

The staff from Maddison's school worked together with her medical team to ensure that Maddison had a successful school year, and she was even placed in a gifted and talented program and maintained A-B honor roll throughout her treatment. During her summer vacation, Maddison took a break from schoolwork to attend Camp Courage and go to Carowinds.

"Landon and our family would like to thank Clement's Kindness for giving us the opportunity to experience a different type of treatment that these special outings provide to our children. A day at the park or attending a special Clemson basketball practice gives Landon the extra energy to get through the hard times that come with treatment."
– Nicole Taylor

Landon Blake Taylor
Greenville, South Carolina

Landon loves sports but he hasn't had the opportunity to attend many games over the past three years. When he was just three years old, Landon was diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia. Over the past several years, Landon has been treated with chemotherapy and seen at the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center a minimum of once per week. Fortunately, Landon has done very well and is expected to complete his therapy this fall.

During the course of his treatment, Landon has attended the carnival at Camp Courage and special sporting outings with other patients from the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center.

"Pam Broughton asked my family if we wanted to go to a Clemson basketball practice that Clement's Kindness was sponsoring. Landon felt well enough to go and we had a great time. The team gave the kids basketballs, a tour of their locker room, and Landon had an opportunity to take his picture with the coach. They even had a dunking contest, which Landon really enjoyed. Clement's Kindness also sponsored a Furman game and Landon got to run down the hill and through the tunnel and then stand on the side lines to watch the game," said Nicole Taylor, Landon's mother.

While he was at the Greenville Drive stadium, Landon was able to meet one of the pitchers from the Greenville Drive who showed him how to raise his leg so Landon could get more power behind his pitch.

Help Us Make a Difference

With your help and support, Clement's Kindness can continue to make a big difference. A donation is the perfect opportunity to touch the hearts of these incredible families and see your generosity at work in the Upstate.

Every donation goes directly to the patients and their families. Your donation may be used for gas money to take a child back and forth for chemotherapy over the course of several months. Or your donation could provide funds for a plane ticket to visit a specialist across the country. Your donation may be used to help with a mortgage payment because a mother had to leave her job to care for her child. As you've seen, the needs are many, but so are the opportunities to help.

$5,000 can provide funds for a School Re-entry Program, which helps transition and prepare children to reenter a school environment.

$2,500 can sponsor a Family Support Day and Retreat.

$1,000 can pay for incidental expenses for a family to take a trip to Duke University for a bone marrow transport evaluation.

$500 can help a family with a mortgage payment or their utility bills for a month.

$250 can fund a monthly Teenager Support Meeting and pizza lunch.

$150 can be used for an initial medication evaluation for a patient and family member.

$50 can pay for a gas card for transportation to and from appointments or a grocery store gift card.

Thank You for Your Kindness

Clement's Kindness would like to thank the following donors who have helped make a big difference in so many people's lives. Your contribution goes directly to helping these patients and families that come to the BI-LO Charities Children's Cancer Center from across the Upstate, including Anderson, Cherokee, Greenville, Greenwood, Laurens, Oconee, Pickens, Spartanburg, and Union counties. We thank you for your generosity because without your kindness we would not be able to help.
